NEW CLIFTONA LAST WORD IN MODERN THEATER BUILDING

FINE SHOWS ARE BOOKED AT CLIFTONA

New Theater Will Be Opened With Colleen Moore In "Oh Kay."

The "Cliftona" management has been fortunate in procuring many of the most highly recommended and latest features for weeks to come. The first picture will be "Oh Kay," starring the personable Colleen Moore, and including a cast of several of the most talented comedians on the screen.

Vivacious Colleen has headed the casts of many such laughable pictures as "Naughty but Nice," "Orchids and Ermine" and "Her Wild Oat." She has attained new heights in "Oh Kay," in which her leading man is Lawrence Gray who will be remembered as Gloria Swanson's leading man in several recent pictures.

Ford Sterling, veteran comedian, adds to the merriment, as an inebriated gentleman.

"Oh Kay" was adapted from the popular musical comedy of the same name, and scenarized by Carey Wilson. John McCormick produced "Oh Kay" for First National Pictures ,and Mervyn LeRoy directed.

"The Glorious Trail" is booked for Saturday. This picture will offer many new thrills, and a host of gorgeous scenic treats.

Following "The Glorious Trail" will be "Sorrell and Son." This movie is adapted carefully from the book, which was read and discussed by a great many people of Circleville. The picture is said to follow the book very closely. "Sorrell and Son" has many opportunities for a number of stars to have splendid parts. The role of the father is the strongest and most beloved character in the picture. The tale is not of the trite theme of many father and son pictures, but is very modern, has a great deal of pathos ,and strikes deep into the hearts of those who see it.

Other splendid offerings that will show later at the "Cliftona" are "The Whip," "Man Made Woman," "The Code of Scarlet," "Lilac Time," "King of Kings," "The Tempest," "Steamboat Bill," "Ramona," "The Divine Lady," "Two Lovers," "Submarine," "United States Smith," "The Swamp," "Revenge" and a host of others that patrons will look forward to in the coming winter months.

The latest up-to-date Pathe news reels will be shown nightly at the "Cliftona" in addition to the feature program.

Cliftona Provides City With Fine Theater

Circleville's new theater, "The Cliftona" opens Thursday and will provide the city and Pickaway-co. with a motion picture palace of which the city can be proud. Modernly constructed, the theater represents an investment of $100,000 to guarantee the local public the same type of high class entertainment as can be obtained in the cities. The beautiful new theater seats 800 persons. It is equipped with an organ and a large stage for the presentation of vaudeville.

GRANT SUPPLIES LIME AND CEMENT

Circleville Dealer Also Provides Plaster and Brick For Furnace.

The plaster, lime and cement for the Cliftona was furnished by S. C. Grant, local dealer He also furnished the brick that was used in the heating plant which was installed in the theater The very best of materials was used in the construction—first grade Wabash Portland cement, lime and kosmortar cement.

Mr. Grant has been in business in Circleville for the past 26 years, and his merchandise is known to be that of the very best. Among some of the different buildings he has furnished with material are. The Circleville post office, Lutheran parish house, Crist building on W. Main-st, O S. Howards building on E. Main-st (remodelling), the Methodist church, Circleville high school building, and many others too numerous to mention.

The Cliftona will certainly be a fine example for his merchandise

PLUMBING BY CRIST

The plumbing and fittings of Circleville's new theater, the "Cliftona," were installed by Ed. Crist, W Main-st.

NEW THEATER IS BUILT IN RECORD TIME

Van Gundy-Beck, General Contractors, Have Many Jobs To Credit.

The Van Gundy-Beck Co., of Lancaster, O., general contractors for the "Cliftona" theater, is composed of A B. Van Gundy and Wilbur Beck. Mr. Van Gundy for more than 20 years, was in business by himself. Until a little over five years ago Wilbur Beck joined the company.

The "Cliftona" is the first theater the Van Gundy-Beck Co. ever built, but they have to their credit some of the best constructed buildings in Ohio. Just before starting work on the Cliftona, the Kresge building in Lancaster was completed by them.

It took the Van Gundy-Beck Co. 90 days to complete their work on Circleville's new theater. This is record time but it was due to the fact that a large number of men was put on the job, directed by a skillful supervisor. The brick work of the building was completed in three weeks by an average crew of 25 men.

The Van Gundy-Beck Co. is now building a new theater in Lancaster, located on Main-st. At the Ohio State university they have built, and will have ready for occupancy in 60 days, a new chemistry building and a new power house They also have the work being done on the State hospital on W. Broad-st, in Columbus.

The lowest infant mortality rate ever reported for American cities was recorded in 1927, according to the annual report of the American Child Health association.

His Vision Made Possible New Amusement House For This City

HARRY CLIFTON

Harry Clifton, owner of the new "Cliftona," is perhaps one of the best known auto dealers in Circleville. In addition to his rapid climb in the automobile business, during the 18 years he has made Circleville his home, he has erected a number of buildings, and enlarged and remodeled others. The "Cliftona" is his latest and most pretentious venture.

These many additions to the town are more remarkable, when it is considered that Mr. Clifton is only 35 years old.

He is a veteran of the World War, having spent 18 months overseas with the 21st Engineer Corps.

His first agency for the sale of automobiles was the Reo agency in 1910. Mr. Clifton, during this time, erected the building where

UP-TO-DATE CONSTRUCTION IS BEAUTIFUL

Steel, Concrete and Brick Used In Structure—Seats 800 Persons.

The opening of Circleville's new theater, the "Cliftona," located on Pinckney-st., Thursday will present to the citizens within a radius of 20 miles the most modern, up-to-the-minute construction known to the experienced builders of show houses.

The building was constructed by the Van Gundy-Beck Co., of Lancaster from plans furnished by Harry Holbrook, well known Columbus architect. It has required about three months to complete this theater.

The theater is built of steel, concrete and cream buffed brick, on a one story theater plan. It has a seating capacity of 800 persons. Two aisles lead from the rear of the theater to the orchestra pit and organ keyboard.

INTERIOR BEAUTIFUL

The interior is painted and decorated in Spanish colors which present a picture to the public, found only in cities much larger than Circleville, with its attractive drapes, colorful lights and shaded designs. All electrical work was done by the Moffitt Electric Co., Circleville.

A modern stage with three automatic curtains is in readiness for vaudeville. The stage is 35 by 50 feet. Back of the stage are two large dressing rooms fully equipped. These rooms are the same size as the stage. Floods and colored lights are on hand to make the acts more realistic.

Upon entering the theater one walks in over a marble lobby and

BUILDS GARAGE

In 1921, he built his present modern garage, and in the same year took over the Buick agency exclusively, with the Reo trucks, and sold these two machines until 1925. During this time, Mr. Clif-on bought two Bauder properties n Pinckney-st., and tore down one and put up a modern double dwelling, made of stucco. The oth-r property where Mr. and Mrs. Clifton and son Junior are now living, was remodeled.

that of Hupmobile. He also sold International trucks with these. In 1927, he obtained the agency for Packards with which he has splendid success. The De Soto, a car made by Chrysler, is the latest make of car that he is handling.

In July, work was started on the theater. A short time later, Mr. Clifton bought the Chappelear building on W. Main-st, where in a short time he intends to build a modern business house.

SELECTS GOOD MANAGER

Nothing that he adds to Circleville later will afford as much pleasure, and be more of an asset to the town than the "Cliftona" which will tend to draw people to Circleville from all over the county.

Mr. Clifton has chosen Henry Mader to manage the theater, a man who has always been a devotee of theaters and one who has the study of them. When this opportunity presented itself, he was well fitted for the position.

Mr. Mader has been fortunate in the features that he has booked, and has arranged splendid programs for the year. He is an excellent judge of good movie bills and his experience and judgment will enable him to select programs that will please the people of his home town.

His knowledge of music also adds to his ability to manage a picture house, because the music in the "Cliftona" will provide patrons with what they have been wanting to accompany good feature pictures. Mr. Mader's assistance with the scores will give a proper musical atmosphere to the theater.

HENRY MADER

When Mr. Clifton wanted a man to manage his new theater, he picked Mr. Mader who has been a student of the theater most of his life. He now expects to translate his hobby into active catering to the amusement desires of the residents of Circleville and Pickaway-co.

HARDWARE FROM POPULAR STORE

Barrere and Nickerson Supplies Fixtures For City's New Theater.

The hardware in the new Cliftona theater, which will open on Thursday, was furnished by a well known and highly respected Circleville organization, Barrere & Nickerson, located on W. Main-st. Mr. Barrere has been in the hardware business 37 years while Nickerson has handled hinges and bolts for 17 years.

This organization serves the entire country with tools and hardware of all kinds, guns, farm implements, separators, and so forth.

Other buildings of note in which hardware from this store has been used in the construction and finishing are: St. Joseph's church, Circleville; the Circleville high school building; Methodist Episcopal church, and all new centralized school buildings in the county.

In 1925 twenty new homes built in Circleville used hardware from this organization.

vestibule into a heavily carpeted foyer. The foyer rail is tinted in beautiful Spanish colors, as found throughout the theater, and is topped with plate glass. At the right of the foyer is the ladies' room and at the left the men's smoking room. The lumber and mill work was furnished by the Pickaway Lumber Co. The hardware used was purchased from Barrere and Nickerson.

BOOTH FIREPROOF

Now for the upstairs. The operator's booth is 12x40 feet, absolutely fireproof and provided with special designed shutters which drop over the two Simplex machines in case of fire. A film on fire means nothing to the public. The shutters fall and if the room gets too hot for the operator he can walk into the office and take a comfortable chair furnished by H. G. Stevenson, Circleville.

Clyde Gregg, of Columbus, will be the operator.

Adjoining the projection room is the office, tinted in a buff color and furnished in the best of furniture, and pretty lights. The office has two large windows facing Pinckney-st.

The building is heated by twin furnaces over which the air from fans passes. Automatic regulators keep the temperature of the theater uniform at all times. The coal bins are large as one carload can be stored in them at one time. The ash pit would make a nice sized dining room.

FINE COOLING SYSTEM

The heating and cooling system was installed by the Columbus Heating and Ventilating Co.

Two huge blowers furnish the building with pure air constantly and will be used in the summer as a cooling system.

One of the most beautiful parts of the theater is the marquis which is about 12x20 feet, which is also painted in Spanish colors and filled with bulbs which flood the sidewalk with light.

Above the marquis is an electric sing "Cliftona" containing 490 bulbs. These bulbs are new 10 watt carbon bulbs. The sign was constructed by the Art Craft Sign Co., of Lima. The letters of the sign are of canary yellow with a chasing border of colored lights.

S. C. Grant, supplied the concrete for the structure and R. P. Enderlin, the plaster.

Hummel and Plum have it insured.

The first picture to be presented at the new theater will be "Oh Kay," featuring the lovable Colleen Moore.

Pictures to be presented at the "Cliftona" will include those from First National, Columbia, Gotham, United Artists and Pathe.

THIRTY TONS OF COAL IN THEATER

The man who sells Kleen Dri Kole, R. P. Enderlin, W. Mound-st., furnished enough plaster, gauging, finishing lime and other builders supplies for the new "Cliftona" that if the sacks were laid side by side they would reach over three and a half city blocks. He also furnished the Keenes cement used in the unique decorating on the walls of Circleville's most modern show house.

The theater's coal bin has been filled with coal from his yards as 30 tons of the black diamonds were placed in the bin.

Mr. Enderlin during his seven years of business in this city has worked up one of the best builders' supply businesses in the city.

FINE STAGE IN CLIFTONA

Attractive Drapes and Curtains Are Installed to Harmonize With Lights.

The Mid-West Engineering and Construction Co., of Columbus, of which Gustav Hirch is president and who has been in business in Columbus for the past 30 years, had complete charge of the draperies, stage settings and hangings and interior decorating in the Cliftona theater. The entire work for the "Cliftona" was under the able direction of K. S. Lopina, who was formerly connected with one of the largest interior decorating companies in Chicago. Nothing was spared in making the theater one of the most beautiful of its design. The best of material was used in the drapes, being made of heavy velour and satin.

The front curtain and valance are made of heavy cardinal red velour of which the upper valance is made with a projecting center banner and it has festoons draping off to each side, terminating in a shawl effect with draperies hanging on each side of the stage. The center banner is made richly of velour and satin upon which is a large embroidered applicae ornament, the whole being trimmed with ornamental rosettes and a metallic gold fringe with the banner hanging from an ornamental wood pole effect.

The front curtain proper, which is worked automatically, is also made of red velour trimmed with a heavy bullion fringe and several ornamental bandings in keeping with the rest of the trimmings. The stage setting consists of a cyclorama and a draw curtain. The cyclorama has a draw curtain in the rear of the stage, also the entire sides and the borders above. These pieces are made of a very rich combination of red and gold cloth that gives a two-tone effect under the footlights.

This setting can be reversed in order to get an entire gold setting.

The draw curtain, which works in front of the picture sheet, is made of a silver and green cloth, which also shows up beautifully under the lighting effects.

The automatic curtain is controlled from the picture booth box by a motor that will open and close it by merely pushing an electric switch.

Passing of the Wolverine

The wolverine, which has one of the most evil reputations of the animal kingdom, is disappearing in this country.

Behind Scenes in Hollywood

BY DOROTHY HERSOG
(Copyright, 1928, Premier Syndicate)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 10.—Lupe Valez and Camilla Horn were exchanging pronunciation ideas over a cup of tea, Lupe gently corrected Camilla's vocal treatment of a word. Camilla shrugged.

"It does not matter. All you need to say in Engleesh to get along is I luff you."

The Latinesque beauty contradicted this with impatient gesture. "You should not say luff. Say lub. L-o-v-e— lub."

"That's what I say," smiled Teutonic Camilla with a languorous shrug. "Luff."

"No! No!" exclamation-pointed Lupe. "Not luff—lub. L-o-v-e—lub."

Camilla agreed without agreeing. And so ended Senorita Valez's second encounter with Fraulein Horn as her English instructress.

Mary Pickford's blue eyes cloud and her brow corrugates as she contemplates the task facing her in "Coquette." Mary must smoke in this talkie version of the w. k. stage hit. Mary has never become enamoured of nicotine. While we were chatting in her bungalow on the United Artists' lot, her brother Jack breezed in, lit a cigarette and dared Mary to demonstrate her familiarity with the weed. Vaguely fearful, Mary accepted the challenge and the cigarette.

The cigarette touched her lips. She closed her eyes. There was a tense silence. No one moved. Mary removed the cigarette from her lips, blew forth a thin stream of blue smoke, opened her eyes and smiled triumphantly. Jack booed the demonstration with brotherly aplomb.

"That's not even the way to hold a cigarette. And why do you close your eyes?"

"The smoke gets in them," indignantly.

"Aw, shucks. Try it again."

Under his teasing tutelage, Mary improved prodigiously. Just the same, she anticipates her combat with the weed with no degree of cheer.

Corinne Griffith, it seems, has two hobbies: dogs and lily blubs. Concerning the latter, one glimpses an amazing assortment of lilies in strolling over the Griffith grounds. Concerning the dogs the butcher knows best. Corinne has six canines: Pal, a frisky fox terrier; Ritzy, a doberman pincher (I wouldn't be knowing about that species), Rags, a black cairn, and three others. Each morning, the butcher boy (he has no relation to the Mellus case) leaves a large assortment of choice bones for these hungry pets. Corinne's meat bill for her dogs alone enters the dollar a day class—perhaps a bit more.

LUPE VALEZ

BEST PROJECTORS

The motion picture projectors in the "Cliftona" were purchased in Cincinnati, Ohio, from the National Theater Equipment Co. The machines purchased were made by the Simplex Co. and are made with Peerless lamp houses. The two machines are of the very latest type and are adapted for movietone. A Brekert spot-flood lamp was purchased which has an automatic color box attached, giving the desired color in an instant.

His Best Possessions

Man's most precious possessions are his friends and his credit rating.—Atchison Globe

GREAT AMOUNT OF WIRE IS UTILIZED

All Electrical Work and Fixtures Are Provided By Moffitt Co.

The electrical work, wiring, installation of motors and electrical fixtures for the "Cliftona" were furnished and installed by the Moffitt Electrical Co., owned by Jim Moffitt who has been in business in Circleville for the past 14 years.

It took approximately 25,000 feet of heavily insulated copper wire for the work on the theater, and 5,000 feet of galvanized conduit pipe, which is the most durable and safest means of wiring.

All fixtures were specially made by L. Plaut and Co., of New York City, which are the largest and best makers of theater fixtures in the world. The center fixture, which is a massive chandelier of Spanish design, contains 18 fifty watt white lights, and four 50 watt blue lights. The four corner fixtures, which are also of like design, contain 12 fifty watt flame tint bulbs and three 50 watt blue bulbs. The side lights are all flame tint bulbs using a double parchment shield with a Spanish ship design. The two organ screens are especially illuminated with indirect blue lighting on a gold back ground.

The stage is illuminated with 14 hundred watt foot lights with the ceiling of the stage having 36 two hundred watt white bulbs which gives plenty of light to the stage. The entire lighting system is controlled from five different places throughout the theater.

The sign "Cliftona" is a large electric flasher sign, run by a special motor, with a chaser electric border. The novel feature about the motor that runs the sign flasher is that it has a radio interference eliminator.

Another odd device installed by the Moffitt Electrical Co. is an inter-communication telephone system which is composed of five telephones—one each in the manager's office, operator's booth, ticket booth, organ console, and ventilating room, and at any time the manager can get in immediate communication with any of the five.

Physiognomy

In the early days physiognomy was considered a form of witchcraft, and persons practicing it were much discredited. In 1597 an English law provided that "all persons fayning a knowledge of this physiognomie should be stripped and openly whipped until the body be bloodye."

Royalty Sails Home

The Duke and Duchess of Apulia, who for three romantic months have honeymooned in the United States as simply Count and Countess Della Cisterna, are photographed upon sailing for home on S. S. Roma. The duke is a cousin to the king of Italy.

THEATER CARPET SPECIALLY WOVEN

Two hundred and thirty-five yards of keystone carpeting, 27 inches in width, especially woven to blend with the Spanish colors of the interior of the "Cliftona" were furnished by the Crist department store, located at the corner of Court and Main-sts. The carpeting is a deep channel red figured with gold.

The Crist department store has furnished south central Ohio with merchandise for the past 35 years and is one of the well known department stores of the county.

The carpeting was woven by the Charles P. Cochran Co., of Philadelphia, Pa., by a special order. Beneath this carpet is a 3-8 inch Ozite pad to add to the softness of the floor covering.

His Choice

"Come, come, you shouldn't refuse to lend me money. One friend should always be willing to help another."

"I know, but you insist on always being the other."

A Good Idea

"Now, look here, Dorothy," said her father sternly, "your mother tells me you've been naughty all day long. The next time you throw mud at your sister's clean dress you'll go to bed without your supper." "The next time I throw mud at Doris," said the crying child, "I'll wait until after supper."—Weekly Scout.

MY GOD'S COUNSELS— O Lord, thou art my God; I will exalt thee, I will praise thy name; for thou hast done wonderful things, thy counsels of old are faithfulness and truth.—Isa. 25:1.

$5 FINE FOR A $4 CAR

It takes a wise man to be a judge these days.

The other day a man was brought into court in New York for violating a traffic law. The judge imposed a fine of $5; at which the motorist remarked that he would prefer, instead of paying it, to surrender his car. Amazed, the judge asked him why; the man replied that he had paid only $4 for the auto, a wheezy old thing made eight years ago.

Justice is justice, and the law must be upheld; but paying a $5 fine on a $4 car is too much. Even the judge admitted it. So, after due thought, he suspended the fine and told the motorist to depart in peace—if he could make his auto go.

THE FIRST RADIO PASTOR

Rev. Dr. Cadman of Brooklyn, New York, has been invited to become the world's first radio pastor, to speak to a far-reaching hook-up arranged by the National Broadcasting Company. Millions of people already listen to Dr. Cadman's radio addresses delivered in Brooklyn Sunday afternoons through the winter.

Dr. Cadman has won a nation wide hearing by his intelligent and liberal views, and by the ready wit with which he answers all kinds of questions.

The power of radio preaching seems likely to become enormous. A great many people would listen to such an address who will never put on their "go to meeting" clothes and darken the doors of any church. Some may remark that that is partly because the contribution box is not passed to the radio audience. But a great many people, through the mystery of the preacher's either voice, have been led on to higher ideals of life. The country will hope that Dr. Cadman will accept his new pulpit which is at least 3000 miles wide.

COMBATTING SENSUALITY

Dr. J. A. Leighton of the Ohio State University says, "Materially, America is so strong that other nations dare not attack her; but there are weaknesses in our national life—extravagances, sensuality and crime—these are ominous things."

He sees sensuality in movies and dances, frivolity and shallowness in gum-chewing and rouge-using, while the crime wave flows on deep, wide and ominus.

He indicates the home as the prime factor for human betterment. He says, "The moral justification of the family is not its wealth of culture, but its contribution to the welfare of its community; likewise, the nation must find its true glory, not chiefly in material progress, but in what it actually does for human betterment.

COMPULSORY INSURANCE

It seems to be increasingly apparent that compulsory automobile liability insurance is failing as an accident prevention measure and is bringing about unlooked-for problems.

Massachusetts has been testing such a measure for nearly two years. Automobile accidents there have not decreased, and it has been found necessary to raise insurance rates, the companies having sustained heavy losses. The courts have been filled with disputed cases. Faked and illegal claims are so numerous as to present a serious problem.

Even at its best compulsory insurance forces insurance companies to take undesirable risks, at the expense of the public, by making the many pay for the carelessness of the few. Recovery is not possible when the injured party is at fault, or when the offending cars are from other states or in a multitude of similar situations.

Compulsory insurance is an attractive theory that seems to circumvent its own ends when put

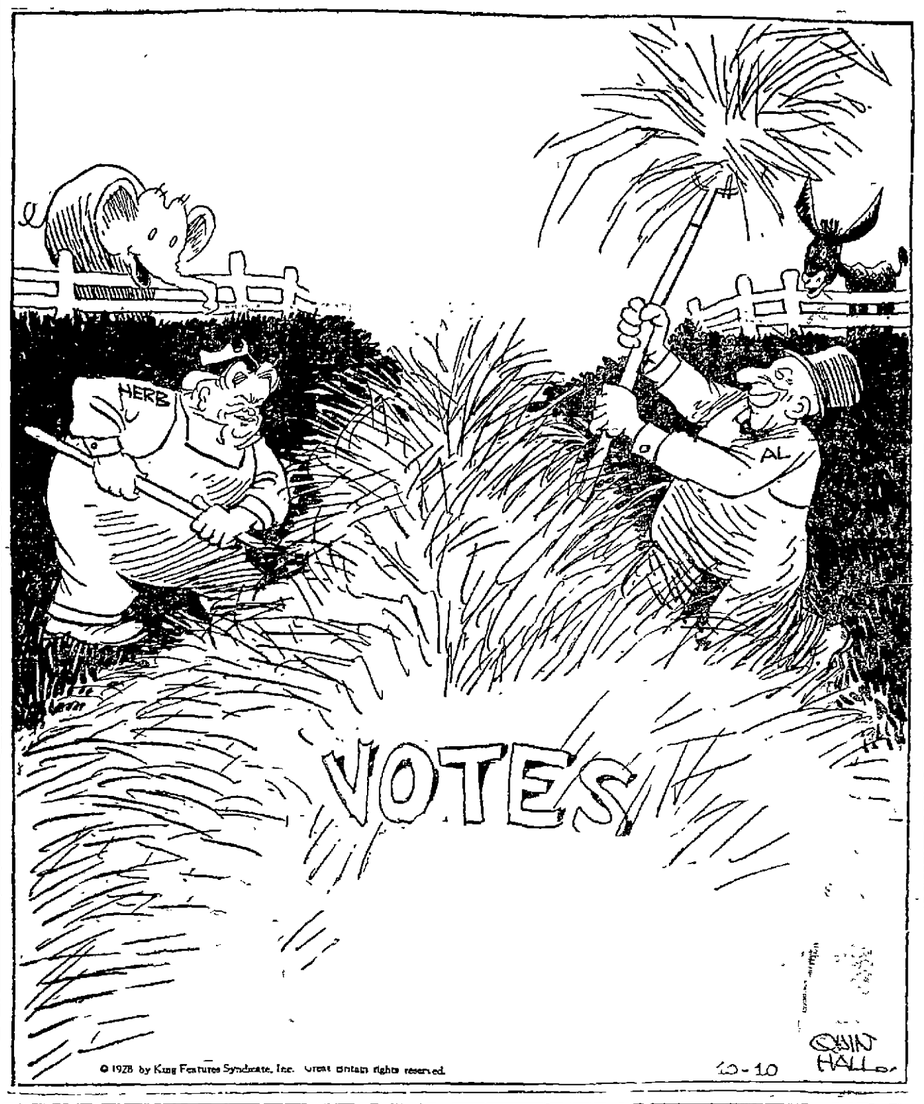
THE HARVEST



Broadway Love

by Thomas Edgelow

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

JANET WILDE is the young and pretty daughter of Fenimore Wilde, one of Broadway's favorite actors. His son Frank is an idler and, like his father, a spendthrift. The girl has a hard time mothering them both. On the eve of a great opening night for her father, Janet accepts the proposal of Gordon Pryor, a young but impecunious actor. In a restaurant she meets a young musician, Leonard Quigg, who attracts her. Janet's father drops dead after a brilliant performance, leaving her and her brother almost penniless. Gordon Pryor breaks his engagement and Janet realizes that it was her father's prestige and not love for her that prompted his proposal. She obtains the position of confidential secretary to John Montague, theatrical impresario. At the same time she quarrels with Leonard Quigg and he leaves her one evening, in a fury. On New Year's Eve she accepts an invitation from David Churchill, a brilliant young doctor, who is secretly in love with her. He is married and makes her promise she will come to him for help in time of need.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XVI.

TWO weeks went by uneventfully for Janet, and then came that evening when she lined with her employer.

"I have to make up my mind about Wyndham Stonor's play," John Montague said. "I think I will dictate to you my reactions, and then we'll come to a showdown tomorrow afternoon."

"That means that you will work late?" Janet asked.

He looked quickly at her, as he replied evenly: "Yes—tell you what we'd better do. You dine with me—upstairs. I have an apartment up there, although I don't live in it all the time. But I can't work if I go out—it distracts me.

"Let's go up and dine. Take the papers with you. There's a typewriter upstairs."

Janet followed him into the tiny private elevator which he worked himself. They went upstairs, where a Japanese servant received them.

"You can serve dinner, Ito," Montague ordered. "Give me a cocktail, but Miss Wilde won't have one. She doesn't know what's good for her."

They left the dining-room, and entered a curiously-furnished apartment. It was done in Chinese reds and blues, and the walls were hung with silk.

"Are you ready to begin work?" Janet asked, feeling that she did not like that room, with its heavy oriental atmosphere.

"Oh, don't be in a rush, Janet," he replied, and Janet noticed that for the first time he had called her by her first name. "A man can't work all his life. Besides, I want to talk to you."

"Yes?" Janet asked, and something warned her to be on guard.

"You're a fool, Janet—I hope you know that much?"

"Thank you, Mr. Montague," Janet said politely.

"'John'—to you."

"What's in a name?" Janet fenced with him. "It's the same thing to me if I call you 'John' or Mr. Montague'—or anything else. Still, the difference in our address seems to point to the more conventional 'Mr. Montague'."

"I started by saying that you were a fool," Montague continued. "Why this complex against going on the stage?"

"I don't want to act," Janet said positively.

"Acting has little to do with it with me," and he grinned at her. "I can take any pretty girl of average intelligence, and if she will do as I tell her, and not commit the fatal error of thinking for herself, I can turn her into an acceptable star. I did it with Lucille Rhodes, and I did it with half a dozen others. I can do it with you. What's the matter with you? Don't you see any lure in fame? Doesn't it appeal to you?"

"It isn't what I want to do," Janet replied. "Besides, why should you want to do it for me?"

"You're a very beautiful girl," he said in a low voice.

"I don't see what that has to do with it!"

"It is just possible that you may have heard—once or twice—of men doing things for girls who are very beautiful. Strange, isn't it?" And Montague smiled.

Janet made no reply.

"I don't expect you to be interested in me," his rasping voice went on. "I do expect you to be interested in what I have to offer. I offer you—stardom, within two years, and I will cover the steps of the ladder with velvet as you climb."

"What language do you understand?" Janet flashed at him. "I don't want to be a star! I don't want to go on the stage!"

"Offer No. 1 refused!" he replied. "Offer No. 2: I have found that most people, irrespective of age or sex, are very interested in money. You are young and beautiful, as I pointed out before. You are working for $50 a week, which does not give you much money for the things that are dear to a girl—clothes, cars, furs, a country place. It seems to me that were someone to settle a large sum of money on you, then you would be interested. I believe that at my age a man should be frank."

"You are offering me money, Mr. Montague? And for what?"

"Don't be an ostrich, Janet, my dear! Why do you suppose I make settlements? Why did I make various beautiful young women stars of the theatrical firmament? Why? Now, don't be impolite, and don't go upstage!"

"You've done a whole lot of talking, John Montague," Janet said quietly. "I think it's my turn. You have mentioned once or twice that because I don't drink, I am old-fashioned. As a matter of fact, I am intensely modern. Otherwise, I should be very angry with you. But the modern girl can hear the kind of thing you've said tonight without anger, because she understands the world. It may be difficult for her, when she contemplates men, to keep a little contempt out of her heart. I am not taking the attitude of the old-fashioned girl and pulling any 'Sir, you insult me!' But I don't want to be made a star, even if I don't have to pay for it. And I don't want a settlement at the price you so kindly suggest. Is that clear?"

He smiled. "I must apologize, I suppose, because any time that a man makes a perfectly business-like proposal to a girl and gets refused, convention demands that he apologize."

"Your apology doesn't interest me in the least," Janet went on quietly. "I wish you hadn't said what you have said to me, as I shall never like you as much as I did before. And I don't want to lose my job, because I am interested in it, and I want to learn what I can of the production end of the theatre."

"You haven't lost your job," he announced. "If you want to forget this evening, and this evening's conversation, I will banish it from my mind. But don't be too hard on me. Put yourself in my shoes if you can! Can you picture what it is to be John Montague? Have I not been encouraged by your sex to believe that most girls are interested in what I have to give? Let that calm down your feeling for me, and if you want to forget it, I will."

"And you won't refer to this again—I mean, to what you have said tonight? Modern as I am, Mr. Montague, I really wouldn't want those offers to be repeated. That must be a firm agreement between us, or I must hustle myself another job."

"It's agreed—although I won't swear to it," he said with a laugh. "No man can ever truthfully promise just how he will behave. But I think I shall be able to suppress the fact that I find you—not wholly unattractive, Janet! I have seen homelier girls than you. Really, I have."

"Then I've to let you laugh your way out of it," Janet said slowly. "But I do want to point out that if you want me to quit, you only have to hint again at what you have off red tonight. And now do you want to work—or not?"

"Parts of me are human," Montague said, as he rose. "I think it would be a strain to work tonight after what has occurred. You go home, and when you come tomorrow we will pretend that tonight never happened. I feel inclined, instead, to sit here alone and forget my disappointment in drink."

He walked with her to the elevator, and showed her how to work it.

"I think you're rather a mean person," he said as Janet stepped in and he closed the door after her.

FAST SPEED ATTAINED IN CONSTRUCTION AND COMPLETION OF CLIFTONA THEATER

Owner Credits Architect and Abilities of Contractors For Work.

The city of Circleville can be justly proud of the formal opening of its new amusement palace, "The Cliftona." One of the secret ambitions of Harry Clifton, who has been in the automobile business in this city for the past eighteen years, has been to give to the people of Circleville a building that would be a credit to the city and one that the people would highly appreciate.

With that thought in mind this beautiful theater building was planned and erected. Mr. Clifton selected Henry Mader as his right hand man in this large undertaking, a man well known by all the city of Circleville, one whom could be relied upon to assist him in the various problems pertaining to the erection and operation of a building of this character.

With the complete management of the theater building in Mr. Mader's hands, the two immediately made preparations by selecting many of the leading pictures for this new temple.

The preliminary details were very carefully discussed and an architect was selected to draw the necessary plans. After viewing many of the beautiful buildings designed by Harry Holbrook, architect of Columbus, Mr. Clifton felt positive that this was the man to handle the designing of the theater.

SPEEDY CONSTRUCTION

After all drawings had been completed by Mr. Holbrook, the next large task was the selection of a general contractor who could be relied upon as to giving service, speed and a first class building. Lancaster, Ohio, can be proud of the organization of Van Gundy-Beck Co., as their work was highly proficient and speed was attained through the service of their superintendent known by all as "Ernie." Actual construction on the building was commenced July 15 and Van Gundy-Beck Co. is to be complimented for their speed.

The other contractors who had a part in the erection of this building are also to be highly commended. They are the Moffitt Electric Co., who handled the wiring, the Ed. Crist Co., who handled the plumbing, both of these contractors being located in Circleville. The heating and ventilating was given to the Columbus Heating & Ventilating Co., of Columbus, O.

With these various organizations completing the general construction it was then necessary to select contractors who would offer equally as proficient service on the furnishing of its equipment. The interior decorating, painting, draperies, stage rigging and setting, was completely furnished and installed by the Midwest Engineering & Construction Corporation of Columbus, Ohio.

UNIQUE SETTING

The interior of the theater is decorated in very soft colors with the side wall panels treated to represent a silk damask effect. The draperies, stage setting complete was made of the highest grade materials and offers a very unique setting for this theater.

The booth equipment was completely furnished by the National Theater Supply Co. and only the finest of projection machines was considered. Careful selections were made on the carpeting and this contract was awarded to the Crist department store of Circleville. The seats were purchased from the American Seating Co., and last but not least, the beautiful Robert Morton organ was selected to adorn the important space set aside in the orchestra pit.

Both Mr. Clifton and Mr. Mader feel safe in saying that the entire populace of Circleville does appreciate the services rendered by these contractors.

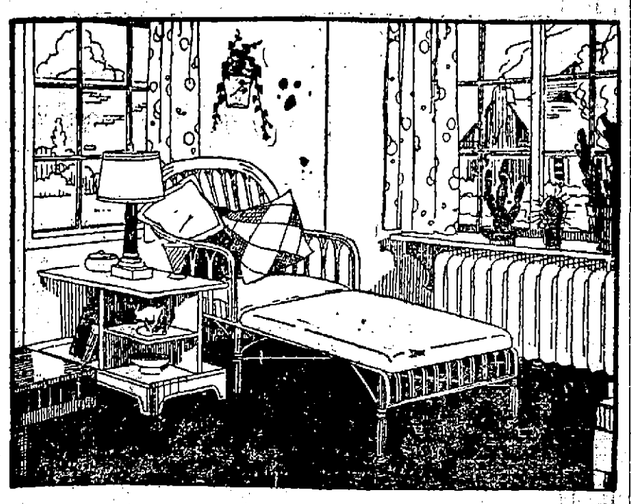
When Varnish Means Hue



IF anyone told you that varnished furniture was a dark green or red you would politely doubt his knowledge, wouldn't you? Yet he probably would be speaking the exact truth, for recently paint and varnish manufacturers have put out a new product which they call varnish-stain, a sort of two in one arrangement which stains as it varnishes.

By Any Other Name

Red and green are sometimes offered under various names by different manufacturers. What appears to the average consumer as a lovely, deep red may be called cherry, cherry fruit or even rich mahogany. Green may appear as moss green, Oriental green, zarina green—but it is much the same color regardless of its name.

And either color is especially delightful for refinishing wicker furniture which needs an addition of rich hue to restore its old vivacity—a vivacity which may have been dimmed by its summer's sojourn on the porch. All that is necessary is to brush the varnish-stain on. No previous staining is needed. The more coats you apply, the deeper will be the color.

Of course there are other colors in varnish stain—the browns which simulate oak and walnut, and the brownish-reds which are called mahogany. And all of them will give a finish which is impervious to spilled water, to violent changes in temperature and to the thousand and one other accidents that can happen to furniture.

Behind Scenes in Hollywood

By DOROTHY HERZOG
(Copyright, 1928, Premier Syndicate)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 10.—The 1928-29 social season was ushered in with the first Mayfair dance tother eve at the Biltmore hotel. Hollywood's six hundred partook of sustenance and refreshments and checked up on any romantic developments that may have occurred during the obscure summer months. Little mental electricity annoyed the guests. A salute to the sturdy not to say robust endurance of matrimony was made when Fred Niblo, president of the Mayfair club, presented a candled cake to Norma Shearer and Irving Thalberg on the celebration of their first anniversary.

Louise Brooks and Eddie Sutherland were sitting at separate tables this year. Last Mayfair dance they were married. Divorce has legalized their freedom now. Buster Collier was with Brooksy. May McAvoy was with Eddie. At least they danced together steadily. May looks very well these days. Likewise Eddie, who is pleased to begin directing Bebe Daniels in her new picture.

Bebe Daniels, incidentally, had a large party. Gary Cooper, I think, escorted her. Lowell Sherman and Betty Francisco were in Evelyn Brent's party. Pauline Garon, who is still Mrs. Sherman, was not present.

Tom Mix brought Lupe Valez. They left, along with Billie Dove, and Irvin Willat, Sally O'Neill and her escort, Molly O'Day and hers, about two-thirty. Lupe wasn't at all keen to leave, but she was a good scout about it. William DeMille and his new bride, Clara Beranger, were with a group of friends, among whom was Mr. and Mrs. Robert Edeson.

Phyllis Haver came with Bert Lytell. Phil said the first time they went out together they dined at the Russian Art club. The next day a reporter telephoned to ask if she was engaged to Mr. Lytell. Bert contended he was willing, but Phyllis merely laughed.

Claire Windsor, formerly married to Lytell, was with a party of friends. Clarence Brown, and Dorothy Sebastian, his fiancee, were in Irving Thalberg's party, as were also Mr. and Mrs. Robert Z. Leonard. Ona Brown, the former Mrs. Clarence, came with her own crowd, among whom was the lad from Pittsburgh to whom she is engaged.

Debt Paying in China Has Humorous Side

Many amusing tales are told of difficulties arising in China from the ancient custom which decrees that each man must pay his debts before the sun rises on New Year's morning. Practically every person in China owes some one else, all transactions being conducted on the basis that one may evade paying one's debts until the new year, and it is not a Chinese trait to pay a bill until payment has been requested at least twice. This accounts for the frantic haste in which the men rush here and there trying at once to collect and avoid creditors.

If one cannot meet his financial obligations he must secure a new loan from another person, and as there is no law, he may be forced to pay as high as 50 per cent or more interest. To dun a debtor on New Year's day is not considered good form; hence it is not uncommon to see an anxious creditor carrying a lantern in broad daylight, seeking to find his debtor, on the assumption that, because of his carrying a light, it is still the night before.

Happy is the man who can outwit his creditors during the last precious hours of the old year, for he may then sail along in peaceful, undisturbed waters for another year. —Inez Marks Lowdermilk, in the Dearborn Independent.

FAST CHANGE IS MADE FOR CINEMA CAMP

Long Desert Trip Made By Dix Company — Other Hollywood News.

(Special to The Herald)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 10.—The longest, most difficult, and at the same time the quickest change in motion picture location camps ever made within the memory of the oldest resident of this film city has just been completed. The Richard Dix company, far in the heart of the Arizona Navajo reservation, 100 miles from the nearest railroad, has moved to the Enchanted Mesa country, of New Mexico—a trip of nearly 250 miles in one day by car and truck. A company of 110 people was transported. Dinner was served on Tuesday night at the Chin Lee, Arizona, location and the next evening, promptly at 6 o'clock, the mess hall at the new camp was in operation.

This accomplishment becomes the greater when it is remembered that most of the trip was made over reservation roads that the ordinary motorist would consider impassible. Not even the hardiest old drivers of the early Barnum and Bailey circus days would have attempted them in that time.

Incidentally the entire Southwest has become vastly interested in the making of this picture, Redskin. Paramount is filming it in natural colors against the authentic backgrounds called for by the story, which deals with the Navajos and the Pueblos of the Enchanted Mesa country. Last Sunday more than three hundred visitors came to the new camp, driving seventy or eighty miles just to see the company work.

Wallace Beery has just acquired a new airplane, a six-passenger affair this time. The genial character man has issued so many invitations for rides to his friends, that the ship probably will not have its wheels on the ground longer than three minutes at any one time for the next eight weeks. Beery is considering a sky tour of the United States and Canada shortly after he finishes his next picture, "Tong War," in which Florence Vidor will have the leading feminine role. William Wellman is to direct.

In spite of the sarcasts that are sometimes passed, Hollywood has more real cowboys than the entire Arizona and New Mexico range. They are the men who work in the many western pictures that are made in the film city and each of them can tell tales that would make Kit Carson and Wild Bill Hickock accuse Billy the Kid of plagiarism. Cowboy headquarters is at a place on Cahuenga-ave called "The Water Hole." "The Water Hole" is a room with a telephone and a pinochle table and producers call there when they want cowboy talent. Any number can be reached at any time of day the nights they take care of themselves.

Eddie Brandstatter is one of Hollywood's greatest showmen, along with the Messrs. Lasky, Laemmle, Goldwyn, Fox, etc. Brandstatter is the owner and operator of the Montmartre Cafe. Film folk are supposed to gather there to make whoopie and they do, but the tourists bring Eddie his chief business. They flock to his restaurant on the second floor of the Hollywood boulevard building in droves, attracted by "Esther Ralston luncheons," "Clara Bow nights" and "Nancy Carroll carnivals." One of the chief attractions of the Montmartre is the Bachelors' Table. The most famous of the eligible males gather there regularly and feminine eyes are always centered on the group.

The stars of Hollywood have libraries of pictures old and new. Just as they have libraries of books and player piano rolls. When some prominent member of the film colony gives a dinner it is inevitable that a picture be shown after the guests are assembled in the parlor, the patio, or wherever it is that dinner guests gather after the meal. Bebe Daniels is credited with having the largest picture library in the colony. She keeps it at her beach home and sometimes the films are run in the open air with the pound of the surf on the sand as an accompaniment.

THE MOVIE DICTIONARY

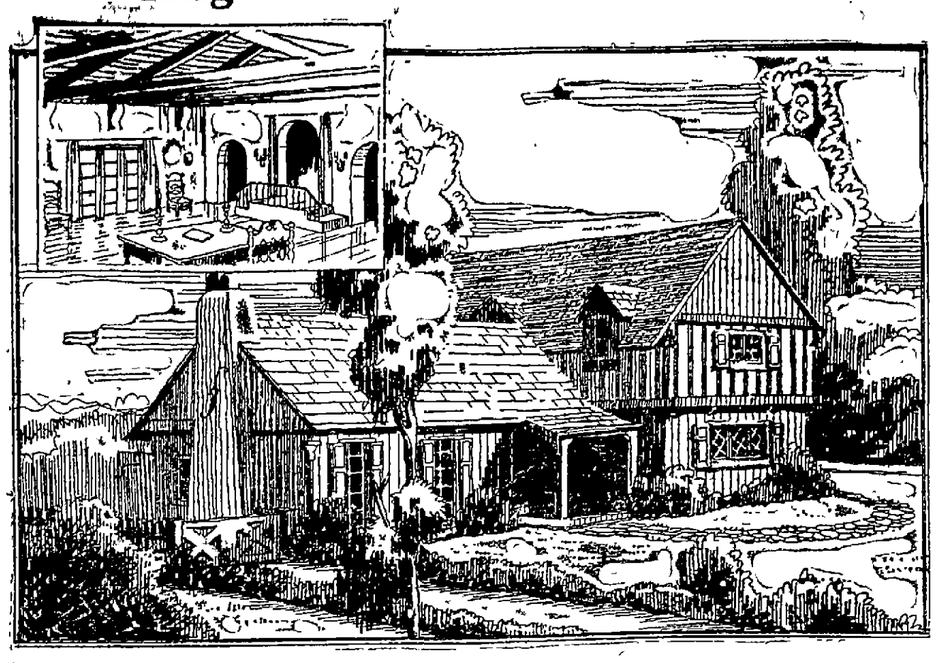
Mugger — An actor who grimaces to attract attention to himself from others he may be playing with in a scene.

Set Dresser — The expert whose business it is to see that furniture and properties are absolutely right.

Trailer—A short length of film made up of scenes from some picture sent to theatres in advance of the play date as an advertising medium. The name is a misnomer and no explanation is offered for it.

Opportunity with a capital "O" is looking for some little gal of the film city. Harold Lloyd has started his next comedy and is still scouring around for a leading lady. The bespectacled comedian always selects some comparatively unknown youngster and from that time on her worries about the rent are over. Lloyd's new picture is to have all the modern improvements—dialogue, sound effects and possibly a synchronized musical score, but the latter has not been decided.

England Comes To America



Courtesy California Redwood Association

WHEN English settlers came to this country three hundred years ago they brought with them ideals of architectural beauty which have profoundly influenced our methods of house planning. Today, we are still building some of the older English forms of houses such as the Tudor type which is so appropriate to modern conditions.

For instance, the five-room Tudor house shown here retains the essential features of the old English manor houses and yet it is small enough to be built to good advantage on a fifty foot lot.

Stucco and Timber

From the exterior, the outstanding points of interest are the stucco and timber walls with the sweeping, gracious roof By painting the timbers a dark brown and painting the stucco a soft buff, a mellow effect is attained which will be enhanced if the shingles are stained soft shades of brown, green and red, then laid in such a manner that the hues form irregular masses of color which are so skilfully blended as not to be blatantly noticeable. Window sashes and shutters in a warm blue or a soft bluish green will add another welcome note of individuality.

On entering the house, one finds himself in a large living room made gracious by the generous-sized fireplace and the beams of the high-ceiled roof. Woodwork stained a soft brown, then given several coats of varnish and rubbed down to a soft glow is especially appropriate in this type of room. If the walls are painted a soft, neutral tan, the hangings and rugs can lend color and vivacity to the room; on the other hand, walls of a pale, sage-green will mean that the room furnishings may be of a more subdued type. With its French windows on either side, the small windows by the fireplace and the openings into the kitchen and dining room, this inviting resting place will, in effect, have four exposures—a factor making for summer coolness.

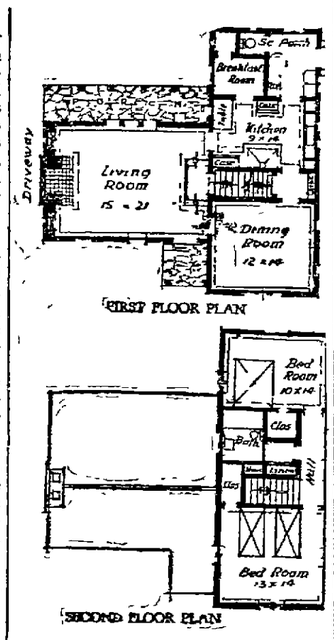
Use Some Color

On the same floor are a dining room, kitchen, breakfast room and screen porch, all of excellent dimensions and well planned both in respect to each other and for the uses they will be put to and furnishings which they will need.

In the kitchen, a color scheme can easily be worked out in winsome hues. If the house, as recommended, faces west, the kitchen windows will be on the south, thus gaining enough sunshine so that no special effort need be made to add light. For that reason a light jade or apple green is a desirable choice for the basic color. With walls of that hue and woodwork of ivory, color accents in light tan can be applied as bandings along the moldings and on the inside of the cupboard doors. The breakfast room, which opens off the kitchen, may be carried out in the same hues.

Upstairs are a bathroom and two bedrooms with most adequate closets. Each of the bedrooms with its three exposures will be cool and comfortable and yet will be light. Casement windows with quaint, small panes open outward. Casement curtains on the sashes with inside draperies in dainty chintz carry out the oldtime atmosphere. Walnut furniture, varnished and rubbed until dull, is beautiful in such a room, but if you prefer the more modern furniture painted in tones of yellow or green or rose, it is perfectly appropriate and, indeed, is very charming.

Although this house is a small one, containing 1641 square feet, it gives an effect of spaciousness due to the clever way in which the floors are arranged to secure the most living room and the least waste space.



Even Steven

"The altruist can always find a balance in the scheme of life," said George Bernard Shaw. "A throng of idle rich, idly draped over the luxurious furniture of a fashionable London hotel, caused a friend of mine to remark scornfully: 'These rich people make me sick, just sitting around doing nothing What is the use of having money if you don't know how to enjoy it?' 'But why fret about it, old chap?' I replied. 'Are you any better off? What is the use of knowing how to enjoy money if you haven't any?'

Worship Under Stars

After the chores are done and the rest of the family are safely sleeping, I like to sit out under the stars and meditate. As the air cools after the heat of the day, there is more rest for me in the quiet of the dusk than there would be in sleeping during that time. A few night sounds, like the bleating of a restless lamb or the bark of a distant dog, break the monotony of the insect hum. Sheltered by the old home trees and surrounded by so many objects and sounds grown dear through familiarity, I realize what it means to worship God under our own "vine and fig tree."—George Godfrey in Successful Farming.

WIN TWO GAMES

Both the boys and girls were victorious in their baseball games Friday, Sept 28, with Adelphi, at Adelphi. The boys won with a score of 10-4. The Adelphi boys were held to a score of 10-0 until the last inning, when they succeeded in making 4 runs.

Although this was the first game of the season for Washington girls, they won with a score of 28-5.

The Washington teams were delayed after the game because the air of nearly all their automobile tires had very mysteriously escaped during the games.

One of the reasons why the cat is supposed to be invested with supernatural powers is because he is so well adapted to take care of himself. U. S. BEGINS PROBE INTO BOOZE DEATHS

Regular and Special Federal Grand Juries Will Investigate Tragedy.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—The federal government today extended its aid to determine the source of the poison liquor which caused 34 deaths in New York city within 48 hours.

Two federal grand juries were likely to take up evidence in the deaths.

United States Attorney Charles Tuttle was to go before the regular grand jury this morning and ask that body to ascertain what national laws were violated, while Judge Francis A. Winslow has called a special federal grand jury for Monday afternoon to make a similar investigation.

Meanwhile prohibition enforcement in the river-front district, where most of the deaths occurred, became more severe. There are 1,000 speakeasies in one mile and a half district along the river front.

Twenty were raided last night, and business in others decreased as reports of the poison liquor spread.

TEASING TILT IS FINISHED IN FIGHT

Persons in front of the Metropolitan theater, Tuesday night, witnessed a good boxing bout free of charge.

The argument started in front of Hanley's tea room, according to information learned Wednesday. One man resented being teased by another and retaliated with several rights to the head of the "wise cracker."

Both of the men were taken to the police station by Chief Warner, but no information was given out as to how the case was handled.

CORN SEASON ENDS

Corn and Lima bean packing at the local canning factories has come to a close. The factories are now starting on the pumpkin packing. One factory reported starting the first of the week and the packing will probably be completed by the last of the week as the crop is short, due to the early frosts.

LONG PRISON TERMS FACING TRIO OF COPS

Maximum of 172 Years Behind Bars Confront Three Philadelphia Officers.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 10.—Three Philadelphia police officers found guilty of extortion after a special grand jury started an investigation of extensive racketeering, today awaited sentence that could reach a maximum of 172 years in prison.

Two of the officers—Captain Wm. C. Knoell and John Sells—pleaded guilty to the charge after District Attorney John A. Monaghan disclosed he had $5,000 that had been collected from bootleggers while Herbert Layre was found guilty by a jury yesterday.

Operators of saloons testified that Layre collected about $500 a week in protection money.

DIFFER ON EVIDENCE

Layre has appealed and it is likely the sentence will not be passed on the three until after the four days allotted for filing the appeal has elapsed. Judge James G. Gordon, Jr., who heard the case against Layre complimented the jury for a "very fit" decision.

Meanwhile Mayor Harry Mackey and Monaghan are at slight variance on the circumstances surrounding alleged police connection with the vast underworld chain.

"Let me say right here that I have not seen any evidence of any police graft during my administration but if there is any it ought to come out as a result of the recent transfers," Mayor Mackey said.

STARTS ON BEAT

"If there is graft on the police force it starts with the individual policeman on the beat. I have been a ward leader and I know the Republican organization in this city never received a cent from protection given crime or vice."

To this statement Monaghan replied:

"The facts are that I have in my possession $5,000 seized from Captain Knoell, who has pleaded guilty. This money was part of graft collected from saloon keepers between March of this year, when the police department was organized on a ward lines, and the end of August, when this investigation began."

KILLS HIS FIANCEE; FULFILLS REQUEST

Kansas City Youth Takes Body to Police Station—Drinks Poison.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 10.—Glenn Jenkins, 20, brought the body of his fiancee, Marie Young, 21, to police headquarters today, and explained that he had stabbed her to death at her own request.

Before entering police headquarters he drank poison but was not affected seriously. "I am ready to be hanged," he told officers. He fell unconscious but was revived by a physician.

Jenkins was taken to a hospital later, suffering from a probable fractured skull suffered when he leaped over a railing in the police station and fell to the floor fifteen feet below. His condition was said to be serious.

NATION NEEDS ITS RELIGION, COOLIDGE SAYS

Urges Nation To Perfect Its Moral Progress In Address At Washington.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10 —Laxity in the nation's religious convictions will induce the forfeiture of the guaranties which have been erected for the protection of life and liberty, President Coolidge told the general convention of the Episcopal church in session here today.

"We can not remind ourselves too often that our right to be free," the president said in part, "the support of our principles of justice, our obligations to each other in our domestic affairs, and our duty to humanity abroad, the confidence in each other necessary to support our social and economic relations, and finally the fabric of our government itself, all rest on religion.

PERFECT MORALS

"Its importance can not be stressed too often or emphasized too much."

And another point, the president said:

"The greatest service that we can possibly perform for the world is to protect our own moral progress."

If that is done, the chief executive pointed out, there need be no fear of the helpful influence the nation can furnish the world.

"Our country is thoroughly committed to a life of reaction," Mr. Coolidge said. "We expect our people to put forth great energy and great effort in perfecting the material structure of our national life.

DEFINES IDEALS

"But all these things will never be done for their own sake. They are not an end in themselves. They are but a means to a nobler character and higher life. Unless that motive is provided from some other source these activities inevitably lead back to the conclusion that the end justifies the means and that might makes right.

"We are not seeking an increased material welfare, that leads to materialism; we are seeking an increased devotion to duty that leads to spiritual life. Such an effort would be in vain, unless our nation as a whole continued in its devotion to religion."

The president cautioned against a self-satisfying smugness because of the progress already made in spiritual advancement. There was no reason to fail. "To comprehend the enormous work that yet remains to be performed and the long distance that must still be traveled before the goal of human perfection is reached."

LOS ANGELES TRAVELS FAST

U. S. Dirigible Making Speedy Progress Across Ohio To Home Hangar.

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 10.—The giant navy dirigible Los Angeles arrived over Cleveland at 10:05 a. m., today en route to its hangar at Lakehurst, N. J., from San Antonio, Tex.

The big airship, apparently following the transcontinental air mail route, passed over Bryan, O., at 7:30 a. m., Toledo at 8:25 a. m., Fremont, O., at 8:46 a. m., Sandusky at 9:10 a. m., and Lorain at 9:48 a. m.

It was the first visit of the big dirigible here since the fall of 1926; at that time motor trouble forced it to turn about here in its projected flight to Wisconsin, and returned to Lakehurst.

Radio stations which worked with the dirigible said the big ship's radio chief reported "everything O. K." The Los Angeles left the U. S. helium plant at Fort Worth, Tex., Tuesday morning to return to its base.

The dirigible had soared over the American Legion convention at San Antonio and then visited the helium plant in a week's tour from Lakehurst. It was expected to reach its hangar by nightfall, Wednesday night. Perfect flying weather was reported along its homeward route.

The bond was reduced from $1,000 to $500 and will possibly be furnished soon.

Meaning Of "Lying Imputations" Up To Small Town Jurors

MORRISTOWN, N. J., Oct. 10 —(UP)— A somewhat puzzled jury, made up of small-town merchants, laborers and one housewife filed into circuit court today to resume their attempt to find out exactly what "lying imputations" means.

Upon their decision will rest the outcome of one of the strangest trials since John Scopes, an obscure school teacher, was called to the bar of justice for expounding the theory of evolution in Dayton, Tenn. In the court room sat a group of the nation's leading liberals, listening to counsel for a minister and a daughter of the American Revolution grangle over the definition of such terms as "socialism, pacifism and communism."

Mrs. Helen Brumley Baldwin, prominent club member of Boonton, N. J., is suing the Rev. Dr. William M. Bridge for libel. Back of the suit is a village quarrel over whether Bridge was justified in inviting liberal leaders to address his congregation. Mrs. Baldwin said he was not, and insisted that a lecture by Mrs. Lucia Ames Mead of Brookline, Mass., would "endanger the community."

Bridge said he regarded Mrs. Baldwin's attitude toward liberals as "lying imputations" and her suit followed.

ONE GRAVE HOLDS VICTIMS OF FIRE

JUNCTION CITY, O., Oct. 10. —While funeral services—both Catholic and Protestant—were being planned for the 17 known victims of the state brick plant dormitory fire, Warden P. E. Thomas of Ohio State penitentiary today continued his investigation that was started yesterday shortly after his return from Kansas City.

The dead, penitentiary inmates assigned to the brick plant, were buried in a common grave yesterday, and services were to be held today. The charred bodies, none of which was identified, were placed in baby caskets.

Officials still were not satisfied today that the three men reported missing had escaped. The ashes of the dormitory will be sifted in a final attempt to determine whether the men were burned to death.

SUPPORT PROMISED

Ernest Hopkins, who was returned from Mansfield Monday by Sheriff Carl Porter on a charge of non-support was given a hearing before E. C. Friece, justice of peace Wednesday morning. He agreed to pay $3 weekly to the support of a child. He was released.

The warrant for his arrest was sworn out by Gladys Wiggins, Pickaway-co., his former wife, according to the sheriff's department.

NEW BELL PROPS

Two new supports have been placed under the fire bell on top of the city building. The old supports had rotted away. The roof is also being painted, according to L. E. Miller, service director.

ZEPPELIN TRIP HELD UP AGAIN

Warm South Breeze May Prevent Huge Dirigible From Starting Today.

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, GERMANY, Oct. 10—(UP)—A prospective fohn, or hot, strong wind from the Alps, threatened today to delay further the start of the dirigible graf Zeppelin for the United States.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the dirigible, was optimistic, however. He said he would start as soon as possible—even today if weather reports from the Atlantic improved suddenly. The area of depression at sea was moving eastward.

The Foehn was an unknown quantity. This birthplace of dirigibles is on the southern border of Germany, on Lake Constance, which divides Germany from Switzerland. Foehns sometimes threaten for days, then suddenly break loose within an hour or two, lasting for one or sometimes two days.

If a foehn comes across Lake Constance, it would be impossible for the dirigible to rise, as the hot wind greatly augments the temperature, which, combined with low barometric pressure, would prevent the Graf Zeppelin from getting her heavy bulk off the ground.

LA FOLLETTE INDORSED BY SEN. CURTIS

Gains Approval of Both Parties By Keeping Opinions To Himself.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 10.—Sen. Charles Curtis, Herbert Hoover's running mate on the Republican national ticket, was knee deep in the northwestern political puddle when he arrived here today for his last Minnesota speech.

Following his custom of endorsing the entire state and local Republican tickets wherever he campaigns, Curtis placed his stamp of approval on Sen. Robert M. Lafollette yesterday at Superior, Wis., and on Arthur E. Nelson, Minnesota Republican senatorial nominee, at Duluth.

Both endorsements, coming as they did from one of the party's national nominees, involved the Hoover-Curtis ticket to some extent, at least, in the factional politics peculiar to the northwest.

LAFOLLETTE SILENT

Lafollette, a Progressive, has refused to endorse the Hoover-Curtis ticket, while his opponent, William H. Markham, recently filed as a conservative and a Hoover Republican. M. K. Reilly, the Democratic nominee, withdrew from the race this week in Lafollette's favor.

Lafollette, therefore, has at least partial endorsement of both Republican and Democratic parties without committing himself to the presidential nominee of either, while Markham and his supporters are left out entirely.

Both parties believe they can carry Wisconsin if Lafollette can be induced to make a choice in their favor.

AL GOES TO DENTIST

NEW YORK, Oct. 10. Gov. Alfred E. Smith took a day off from campaigning today and went to a dentist.

"I'm going to have this day to myself," the governor told his flagged campaign councillors and newspapermen away with a wave of his brown derby. "It will be the last day I will have to myself in this campaign. I'm going to the dentist."

There were suspicions among members of his personal party that he intended to have a few political visitors in at his hotel suite —"lucky headquarters," he calls it—and that he wanted to be let alone before he starts south at 11 p. m. for the first campaign trip a Democratic presidential nominee has taken in Dixie since the Civil war.

His special train of eleven cars was being polished in the railroad yards to accommodate the largest party the governor has taken on a campaign tour. There will be 36 members of his personal party, besides 37 newspapermen and 7 photographers. He will use the same train he rode on his western trip.

SEEK NEW YORK VOTES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—Herbert Hoover turned his attention today to his presidential campaign in New York state, the territory which has become the dilemma of the east for both parties.

The Republican presidential candidate will confer at his headquarters with Charles D. Hilles, Republican national committeeman, and H. Edmund Machold, state Republican chairman, receiving a report of the status of the Hoover campaign in Alfred E. Smith's home state.

Hoover will seek to learn particularly what effect the gubernatorial candidacy of Franklin D. Roosevelt, 1920 Democratic vice-presidential aspirant, will have on Smith's chances in New York. Smith selected Roosevelt personally because of his vote getting ability.

Babe Ruth Outstanding Star of World Series

GREAT ASSET TO YANKS IN RECORD PLAY

New York Submerges Cardinals by Taking Fourth Straight Victory.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 10.—There is a well founded conviction in baseball circles today that the New York Yankees are champions of the world in fact as well as in name.

Their smashing triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals in four straight games, a triumph based on sound pitching and built up by the greatest exhibition of extra base hits ever displayed by any ball club in a world series, stamp the Yankees as easily the best baseball team of all time.

And standing out today as by far the greatest of players is our old friend, Babe Ruth.

The 1928 world series, which ended so abruptly at Sportsman's Park yesterday afternoon with the 7 to 3 victory of the new champions might easily have passed on into baseball history as one of the worst and most farcical ever played. The St. Louis Cardinals who entered the post season engagement strong favorites to defeat a supposedly crippled opponent, did their best to make it so.

RUTH WHOLE TEAM

Their failure was even more startling, more complete and more dismal, than that of the Pittsburgh Pirates, who went down to defeat in four straight games before these same Yankees a year ago. The series was in a fair way to degenerate into one of the saddest jokes in the history of the national pastime.

Babe Ruth changed all that. Singlehanded, he was a ball team, nay, a whole ball game, in himself. He was just about a whole world series.

There was only one thing that could have saved this sad "series," and the Babe had it. Superintuitive baseball, offensive and defensive, a brave display of team spirit and a spectacular burst of individual effort, the gay spirit of a boy when it was appropriate and the grim spirit of relentless fight when it was needed. Babe Ruth had all these ready in the emergency.

A cold recital of the records which Ruth assisted in making hardly paints an adequate picture of the big fellow's contribution to the 1928 series. To appreciate Babe's part, you had to see him up there at the plate yesterday, clapping his hands and doffing his cap in mock appreciation of the spirited efforts of the entire Cardinal team as it stormed around the four blue clad umpires in the blistering seventh inning, trying to have him called out on strikes. And then see him, a moment later, when the argument had been won—as baseball arguments always are, if you stop to think about it—by the umpires and the game is on. Casey at the bat himself never put more determination into the business at hand. The difference between the immortal Casey and the equally immortal Babe was that the latter delivered.

Another tremendous home run went soaring out against the clear blue sky of another perfect afternoon, and Ruth had broken up another ball game.

Little Willie Sherdel, once more the victim of irresistible Yankee bats, tried to win an argument and lost his chance to win the game. This was the story of the fourth game in a nut-shell.

STRIKE NOT ALLOWED

Out here in St. Louis they are still protesting bitterly that Umpire-in-Chief Pfirman decided wrongly when he refused to allow Sherdel's third pitch to Ruth in the fatal seventh inning to count. The Cardinals' plucky little southpaw had floated over two perfect strikes on the Babe, with one out and the National league champions hugging a one run lead as tightly as a miser hugs a nickel.

Seeing what he thought was a chance to slip a third strike past Ruth, Sherdel shot back Smith's return without allowing sufficient time to elapse according to American league rules. The ball may or may not have been another perfect strike, but Pfirman refused to allow the pitch to get into the record, calling time.

One of the loudest and most picturesque arguments that ever interrupted a world series game ensued. Sherdel put everything he had into the argument, and lost. When he had to go back and pitch he was lost, and the Yankees knocked him out of the box before Bill McKechnie could say "Alexander."

BABE ENDS GAME

Alex finished the game, and the Yankees finished Alex. Babe Ruth brought his total of homers for the afternoon to three with another long drive over into Grandstand. That last blow won the hearts of the fans, the same fans who had cheered the Babe at the start, and then had hurled pop-bottles at him after the incident of the seventh inning.

To top off his day's work, Ruth made an amazing running one-hand catch of Frankie Frisch's foul drive, a sharply hit ball no one with a crippled knee ever should have started for. The final picture one carried away from the game as the fans poured onto the field and eddied in tumultous waves across the diamond, was one of the Babe, still sprinting down past the third base boxes, [illegible] with laughter.

NOT "T. N. T." FOR NOTHING

SPORTSMATTER

BY FRANK GETTY

(By UNITED PRESS)

His first fight was in a street brawl ten years ago, and today, Andre Routis of Bordeaux, France, is featherweight champion of the world.

Routis won the featherweight fight title by gaining a fifteen-round decision over Tony Canzoneri, Brooklyn Italian, at the Madison Square Garden.

The new champion was in his childhood when France entered the world war. His father at the age of 42 years was called on to wear the French uniform and Routis became an orphan at the age of 14 when his father was killed at the front and his mother dropped dead at the feet of the bearer of the sad tidings. There were no brothers and sisters to whom he could turn for aid and Andre was left to shift for himself.

Too much wine started him on a fistic campaign. Routis imbibed of Old Burgundy too freely one evening and was persuaded to take part in his first ring battle. He won the fight but was punched sober before the final bell. Other bouts followed and in 1919 the Frenchman won a technical knockout over George Gloria in six rounds. Since adopting a ring career, Routis has lost his taste for wine. When he does do a little drinking it comes after and not before a fight.

Routis Aggressive

Routis is an aggressive fighter. He won the bantamweight title of Europe by taking a decision from Bugler Lake. Later he relinquished the title to Kid Francis after going without food for three days in an effort to make the weight. His advent into the featherweight class was successful, Routis winning the European title after gaining a 15-round decision over Harry Hebrans, Belgian, in 1924.

Learning of the dollars that go with fight titles in this country, the Frenchman set out for the United States more than two years ago. He made his American debut at Ebbets Field and won a thrilling ten-round contest from Cowboy Eddie Anderson.

A year ago the Frenchman first stepped in the ring against Tony Canzoneri. Tony got the decision but there were many ringsiders that [illegible] thought that Routis [illegible] battles of the affair. [illegible] slipped out of his class [illegible] gruelling battles with Joe Gl[illegible]. He lost and returned home last fall for a visit.

Criqui Also Champ

The Frenchman returned last Feb[illegible] and was matched with Can[illegible] for the title. Tony was take[illegible] Routis kept busy in two bouts with Sammy Dorfman, a fight with Ignacio Fernandez and another with Vic Burrone. The bout with Burrone was at Ebbets Field the night before the Tunney-Heeney match and since that time Routis has been idle in anticipation of the championship bout with the Italian titleholder.

Pugilistic history reversed itself when the Frenchman won the title from the scrappy Italian. France for the second time is celebrating the winning of the 126-pound title by one of her fighting sons. Eugene Criqui knocked out Johnny Dundee, one of the greatest little fighters ever to step into a ring.

The new champion is the type of fighter the scribes like to see in action. He started out as a bantam and fought his way to the French title. After this he set out for featherweight laurels in Europe and was successful. In America he had visions of a junior lightweight title but Joe Glick was responsible for his returning to the featherweight class.

Forced To Bed Because of Rheumatism, Finds Speedy Relief Through Konjola.

MR. GEORGE BROWN.

Seems like the wonders Konjola works in relieving disorders of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness, will never cease. Daily hundreds pay tributes of praise to this sterling remedy.

"In an inspection of the mines, I got my feet wet, and rheumatism set in. My body was a mass of aches and pains, and I became so afflicted that I had to take to my bed. I thought I would never be up and around again, for nothing helped me. Several friends suggested Konjola, and I started on the treatment. I had imported medicines from Europe, which had failed, and I had little hope. Imagine my delight and surprise to be out [illegible] bed after taking one bottle of [illegible]!

"After [illegible] three, I went to my office, and today I am perfectly well. I can climb a scaffold as quickly as any youth in my employ. Try to beat this record of Konjola's. I am hoping this report reaches every victim of rheumatism in the country."

Konjola is sold in Circleville at Mykrantz Pharmacy, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—Adv.

DRIBBLE RULES ARE STRICT THIS YEAR

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—The new basketball rules of 1928-29, while not limiting the dribble to one bounce, will be unusually strict on persons in possession of the ball.

A new clause was added to the section under the head of personal fouls. It reads:

"A player shall not hold, trip, charge or push an opponent whether or not either player has possession of the ball. If a dribbler charges into an opponent or makes personal contact with an opponent without an apparent effort to avoid such contact, a personal foul shall be called on the dribbler.

"If, despite the dribbler's effort to avoid contact, personal contact ensues, either player, or both, may be guilty; but the greater responsibility is on the dribbler if he tries to dribble by an opponent who is in his path."

Other changes include provisions to penalize guarding from the rear by personal foul, and for making it illegal for a player to take advantage of great height by tapping the ball over his head and then catching it.

O. S. U. RESERVES TO PLAY BISHOP TEAM

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 10.—Ohio State university inaugurates its "secondary" schedule here Saturday afternoon. Ohio Wesleyan Reserves are to be the Buckeyes' opponents.

In addition to being the first game of its kind in Columbus, the Saturday matinee offering has other attractions. In the first place, all of the facilities and regulations of a varsity game will carry on. The game starts at 2 p. m. Eastern Standard time. There will be no reserved seats but admission in any part of the stadium will be $1.

Howard Yerges, quarterback of Ohio State's championship elevens of 1916 and 1917 is head coach of the Buckeye Reserve squad. Yerges while in school was selected on "All-Western" squads and won the Big Ten scholarship medal in his senior year.

A major attraction of the Saturday afternoon program here will be the running account of the Ohio State-Northwestern varsity game at Evanston. A monster scoreboard 45 feet long is to be suspended from the upper deck on the north curve of the horseshoe. Visible from all parts of the field, this board will show the score and the progress of the ball in the game at Evanston.

NEW MANAGER OF CARDINALS IS PREDICTED

Storm Clouds Hover Over Head of McKechnie—Owner Is Silent.

ST. LOUIS, MO., Oct. 10 — Storm clouds hovered over the head of William B. McKechnie today and baseball fans wondered if another manager of the St. Louis Cardinals was at the end of his string.

Even before the New York Yankees won the fourth straight game from the Cardinals, reports were in circulation here that McKechnie would not manage the red birds another season. Sam Breadon, president of the club, however, was non-committal on the subject of the Cardinals 1929 leader.

Frank Snyder, former New York Giant and Cardinal catcher, who managed the Houston, Texas league club the past season, has been mentioned as McKechnie's possible successor, but Breadon has denied Snyder's selection for the job.

MAY RESIGN FIRST

Snyder led the Houston team to the Texas league pennant and then the Dixie championship over the Birmingham southern league club. Shortly after the Dixie series, Snyder suddenly resigned after a salary dispute with Houston officials.

McKechnie may beat Breadon to the draw and resign before he follows in the footsteps of Rogers Hornsby and Bob O'Farrell. McKechnie is not eager to remain in baseball much longer.

When he boarded the sport writers' special train last night for his home at Wilkinsburg, Pa., McKechnie appeared anything but a manager out of a baseball job.

"Nothing to worry about now," he said. "It'll be all over."

MANAGERS GO FAST

The records show that the Cardinals' have had four managers in the last four years.

Branch Rickey was deposed in favor of Rogers Hornsby during the 1925 season. Hornsby led the Cards to the National league pennant and world champion in 1926 and was traded away. Bob O'Farrell piloted the Cards in second place in 1927, despite adverse conditions. He, too, was traded.

McKechnie pulled the Cards through one of the most strenuous campaigns in years, and he, too, may go the way of Hornsby and O'Farrell.

SOURNESS, HEARTBURN GAS, BLOATING, YIELD TO SIMPLE TREATMENT

5c BUYS A REALLY GOOD CIGAR

You say it can't be done? Man, read this!

The five-cent cigar purchaser is as much entitled to enjoyment out of his smoking as the man who pays more. Here's the cigar that'll give it to him: Havana Ribbon. Don't say it's "just another five-center." Try it. Then let your judgment rule.

Havana Ribbon is as different from ordinary 5c cigars as green or over-ripe bananas are different from ripe ones. And for the same reason: Havana Ribbon contains no "green" under-ripe tobacco; nor over-ripe. No bitterness; no flatness. You get a smoke that's marvelously fragrant, cool, mild, mellow—fine-tasting. . . . Because it's ripe tobacco—every bit. And long-filler too! No "scraps" or "cuttings."

Havana Ribbon has been going great guns for thirty years. Millions being smoked! It's the "miller" of the century, and 5c will prove to you that this is no idle dream. Sold everywhere. Also Practical Pocket Packages of five cigars.

What Doctors Think of the Laxative Habit

In all history, no Indian was ever known to have constipation. Nor need YOU. He chewed the bark of a tree called cascara. Today, we have the candy Cascaret.

Cascarizing the bowels never forms a laxative habit. If already formed, an occasional Cascaret will usually break the habit. For cascara strengthens the muscular walls of the bowels, and their need of any aid at all grows constantly less. What other cathartic has this characteristic? The writer knows of none.

An evacuation brought gently about by cascara will, nine times in ten, be followed by full functioning of the bowels on the morrow—and for days after. For there is no REACTION as with sickening salts, or any of the manmade purgatives that go through one's system like a bullet.

Physicians tell us cascara is the ideal laxative—and the tongue tells us candy Cascarets are its ideal form. At least a million people know this; what a pity there are any who don't! Especially parents, because children love to take a Cascaret. After which, for days-on-end, the bowels will be seen to work of their own accord.

The only habit from cascara is that of regularity! Cascarets tone and trim the bowels. But at the first sign of returning sluggishness another Cascaret is as effective as the first.

There isn't a druggist who hasn't Cascarets, so WHY experiment with laxatives?

AN IN CLIFTONA THEATER IS ACME OF EATER INSTRUMENT ACCOMPLISHMENT

l of 353 Pipes Affords 'ide Range of Tonal Interpretations.

ıe new two manual and pedal ert Morton orchestral organ being installed in the Cliftona ter, represents the acme of ern theater organ accomplish- t. This organ, a strictly Cal- ıia product, was built by the ert Morton Organ Co. in its million dollar plant at Van 's, California, which is consid- l by organ and factory experts last word in pipe organ fac- es. The already expert corps ›rgan builders has been aug- ıted by a research department the development and progress nusical problems, as the en- activities of the company are oted exclusively to the manu- ure of Robert Morton pipe or- s, already considered in the ısical realm the world's finest.

he total number of pipes in organ are 353—the rich vel- tones of the tibia, the sonor- diapasons, the exquisite violin, rich full trumpet, the human e of the vox humana, also the p effects of the chrysoglott, xylophone, bass drums, cym- tympani, castanets, tom tom, gh bells and bird whistle and ıy other effects for bringing the realism of the various pic- s.

nother distinct feature of the organ is the combination pistons which permit of unlimited grouping of tonal colors for use instantaneously by merely pressing a piston.

Another outstanding feature of this organ is the second touch provided for the accompaniment by means of which the beautiful counter melodies are produced

This marvelous instrument is located in an especially constructed sound proof chamber on the left side of the theater above and to the rear of the curtain A set of expression controls are provided for the chamber allowing a crescendo effect from the echo of the most powerful forte. In addition to these facilities at the command of the organist is a balanced crescendo which brings on the various stops from the softest to the most powerful and back again to the softest.

There is a five horse power motor for the pressure which furnishes 500 cubic feet of air per minute for the bellows The current which operates the many magnets is supplied by a separate low voltage generator. Many miles of cable wire convey the electric impulses from the keys in the console to the magnets under each pipe in the organ. Other miles of extremely delicate magnet wire are used to operate the stop key switches

The woods used in the construction of this organ are the finest California straight grain sugar pine for the pipes, also maple, walnut and for general construction—Alaskan spruce. For the metal pipes block tin, pure lead, brass, zinc and special alloys are used.

The installation of the Robert Morton organ in the new Cliftona Theater will no doubt be one of the prominent features contributing to the marvelous success that is prophesied for the theater.

LUMBER PROVIDED BY PICKAWAY FIRM

Trimmings Made of Poplar and Doors of Birch From West Virginia.

The Pickaway County Lumber Co, on E Main-st., owned by Alfred Lee, furnished all of the lumber that was used in the new theater.

The trimmings are made of poplar and all the doors are made of birch, this lumber coming from West Virginia.

Yellow pine was used as flooring for the stage, but is a flooring that has probably never been used in Circleville before. It is end matched, edge grained.

It is estimated that more than 25,000 feet of lumber were used in the making of the new theater The Cliftona is a creditable piece of mill work for Mr. Lee, as all of the designing, fitting and mill work was done at the Pickaway County Lumber Co, plant

ATMOSPHERE OF SPAIN IS IN CLIFTONA

Interior of New Circleville Is Triumph For Decorating Artists.

BY ALLISON DELPLANE

The first impression of the interior as a whole of the new "Cliftona" is that of a big Spanish hall, rich in colorful decoration. On closer examination the careful attention to the smallest detail soon becomes apparent Everything is Spanish from the stage curtain to the back of the theater where the doors to the rest rooms are set deep in narrow archways.

On the walls, the pilasters are of a neutral shade and finished with colored ornamental plaster caps at the top. Between the pilasters, wide panels are of a dull shade of old rose, stenciled to represent silk tapestries. The panels are shadowed to look like lights coming from the stage.

In the center of the panels are Spanish sconces which could easily have come from an ancient castle. These shed but a diffused glow from translucent candle bulbs The indirect lighting from the ceiling is furnished from bronze chandeliers that are suspended from round gratings The center grating is a part of the ceiling decoration which is effected by polychromed mouldings and frescoe work, into what is known as a rosette design

ALL SPANISH COLORS

The colors everywhere are Spanish blues, reds and greens, and all the side mouldings and frescoes are tinted in these shades, with a touch of yellow here and there. The stripes of color on the mouldings set off with a true artist's touch the idea of the entire interior

All the woodwork in the theater is finished in antique bronze, and where the neutral colors are used on the walls and ceiling, the finish is stippled.

Something that will attract the eye immediately are the two Spanish grilles toward the front of the theater, just over the two side exits. From behind these copper lattices will come the tones of the pipe organ.

Behind the last row of seats, which are of soft red leather, is a plate glass partition, as in all new theaters, so that patrons coming in, can see down to the screen, without disturbing those already seated. As one walks down the aisle, the eauties of the heavy carpet can not easily be seen, but the thickness and richness can be judged by its luxurious softness.

HARMONY PREVAILS

It will take several visits to the "Cliftona" to see everything that has gone to make up the beauty of the interior But the beautiful colors, and the tasteful decorations, which are intricate and sufficiently ornate, for a show house, yet are not overdone in any way, as is the case in a great many of the recently built theaters in larger cities The Spanish type was wisely chosen and carefully carried out.

The Mid-West Construction Engineering Corporation had the contracts for the inside of the theater. They have recently completed 35 such contracts, and unsolicited, spoke of the "Cliftona" as one of the most attractive that they have ever designed.

ONIONS SCARCE, STRONG AS EVER

Crop Prospects Slumped In August—Half Crop Is Expected.

Onions will not, apparently, be so plentiful this year as in past years, judging by the crop estimates available to the rural economics department of the Ohio State university. These estimates indicate a 1928 onion crop in Ohio of only slightly more than one-half of last year's crop, and a production for the country of only about 13 million bushels compared to about 17,500,000 bushels last year

During August, the prospects fell off heavily. The Aug 1, forecast was for about 15 million bushels in the late-onion-producing states The Ohio crop indicated on Sept. 1, was 1,294,000 bushels which is considerably less than the anticipations of Aug. 1

Ohio normally ranks third in the production of late onions, being surpassed by New York and Indiana. The New York crop is now estimated at about one and one-half million bushels for the year, compared with more than three million bushels in 1927, while Indiana now has prospects for nearly a normal crop.
